1. Claims 1-14 are allowed.

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art of the record fail to teach or suggest singly and/or in combination a makeup simulation device, method and recording medium storing a program in executable form that causes a computer to perform a makeup simulation using a reference image comprising  $n$  ( $n$  is a positive integer) layer images and one facial image, the reference image having been generated previously according to a drawing instruction inputted by a user via a manipulation device, each of the  $n$  layer images containing at least one makeup element image in one color, the makeup simulation causing the computer to function as means as follows first image generation means for generating  $n$  first images corresponding to the respective  $n$  layer images on the basis of a transparency set in each pixel in each layer image for each of the  $n$  layer images, target image acquisition means for acquiring a simulation target image containing a face of an individual as a simulation target, mesh setting means for setting a mesh in a facial region contained in the reference image and setting a mesh in a facial region contained in the simulation target image, deformation means for calculating a difference of positions between corresponding vertices of the meshes set in the reference image and in the simulation target image, and deforming the makeup element image contained in each of the  $n$  first images to fit in the facial region contained in the simulation target image on the basis of the calculated difference, second image generation means for generating  $n$  second images corresponding to the respective  $n$  layer images by performing a specific color conversion processing using color components of the n layer images on the simulation target image, and synthesis means for determining transparencies of the respective n second images and the simulation target image on the basis of the n first images, and synthesizing the simulation target image and the n second images using the determined transparencies as prescribed for in the claimed invention.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
